

Appendix 3 : "Flashback unleashed"

What must not be published in Svensk Damtidning and its spiritual companions is published online. I have here compiled a selection from the site Flashback, mainly from "The Great gossip thread about H.M. King Carl XVI Gustaf", to give readers a sense of what it is about:

The Royal Wrecking Crew

- After a tip from Expressen, Deanne Rauscher has registered on Flashback to get access to information that so far no newspaper has dared print. So cough up the shit! If we help her dig, I think we'll need gas masks to suffer the smell! Muckraking of the mentals of Drottningholm must be supported. Down with the frog and the German skank!
- YES! Dicks in the mailbox! His mayonnaise the k-k-king is of course not imbecile, but the lift has definitely not reached the top floor.
- Since the king does not appear to be a sharp speaker in the classical sense and furthermore is considered by many of the people to be poorly gifted, it is easy to underestimate one of his most important qualities: the ability to arouse sympathy in his own quiet way. Remember the tsunami speech - no big words but a genuine delivery that touched the people on a deeper level and united the nation.
- If we sort in your high-sounding language and switch to flashbackian, you are actually considering that that I may be RIGHT?! Ha! Ha! Ha! :)
- The tragedy is that the king is so damned entertaining. It almost feels like having Fadde [Darwich, bouncer at Spy bar] as head of state.
- Yep, the entertainment factor is almost always on top - but sometimes I miss Tarras-W, she was an extra cherry on the marzipan cake!
- I have met him and he is both a nice and fun person with humour and a little distance to his position. I can't say anything other than that I'd rather have The King as head of state, regardless of any shortcomings, than some fucking politician-muppet elected to the position of a collection of mentally challenged nobodies that only care about tax rates and nursing-schooling-caring.
- A close friend of mine sometimes works at Drottningholm with the Queen's looks. According to this friend, the Queen is an arrogant, shrill and unpleasant bitch to be served at her pleasure. It's common among upstarts apparently, and Silvia is one of them.
- I don't think the Joker has Alzheimer's. It's just her natural behaviour to act as if she had it.
- Denial! That's not the woke way to treat an immigrant social worker!
- I first saw Joker used as a nickname in a small article in Expressen. She had come home from visiting a clinic in Brazil, and an astonished journalist could not fail to note the fact. The worst of the smiley has fortunately disappeared since then.
- My dad just pulled a joke about her plastic surgery and I couldn't stop laughing: "If Silvia lifts herself one more time, she'll get a goatee." Took me a few seconds before the penny dropped and then I lay on the couch crying with laughter.
- Are you aware that anyone can post on Flashback? You, me, anyone...
- Most of the women (according to the book) did not know that the King would be there. That is reasonable to assume, because there would probably be quite a lot of talk. But they didn't mind being there and taking part in the company and the food. The Wokerati seem to have difficulty understanding the situation. Even if they themselves would avoid being there others think differently and it is time for them to realize that.

- How can you say that these manipulated, reprobate little lives that have been lured into a humiliating context, where they can revel in food and drink, are goldiggers??

- Go suck an egg! This is a gossip thread, not a thread where we talk sense! We want to know who he has bedded, what sexual position he prefers and how tenacious our king is in the old in and out so that we can benchmark him against the international competition. Comprendo?

- Jawohl mein general. What you don't have in your head, you are supposed to have between the legs. Keep Sweden free from inbreeding!

- Damn what I admire you who can sit here all day and half nights. This thread has become like a perpetual motion machine. An army of beetleheads try to interpret what little the court is letting out. The same information goes round, round and around and is constantly commented on adding new angles, speculations and conspiracies by people who should be doing something useful instead. Make your bed! Do the dishes! Get a life!!!

- The problem with the royal house is that it is private when it suits them, and a state matter when it suits them better.

- If you follow this thread, it sounds as if it was a religious discussion. We have some who persistent like Talibans deny everything in the book [The Reluctant Monarch]. The sources are not accounted for but the book is still as well founded as a regular newspaper article. Josefsson [an investigative reporter] uses anonymous sources when he makes his reports. People are not saying that these sources are something he made up. (Now I don't want to hear a lot of drivel about him from you boys.) And now I am closing down my hatch on the subject!

- Amen!

- As I said earlier, it is partly our fault that the book was written, sorry King on Flashback's behalf.

...

- You Swedes are the world's most self-hating people. The Jews in the media do everything to smear your royal house and you idiots are cheering them on. Why don't you let your pants down right away so the Zionists can sodomize you in public and then you can throw yourself in front of a train like all the other self-hating Swedes. Fucking piss people, hope you'll get extinct faster than fast.

- We have a system here, you black-skinned idolater! It may not look like much to the world. But we like it! And it's ours!!!

- Agreed. Fucking warthog! I hope Säpo makes you pseudo pregnant.

- Hurray! Miaou. On him! Bite! Tear! Claw! Roar!

- The race to the bottom of this discussion is not yet over.

*

“I have actually sat down and calculated the inbreeding coefficient of the King. The reference to the algorithm is <http://www.ihbc.se/app/servlets/inavel.html> for those who want to breed royalty, horses or some dog. I only found four cases of common ancestor. The fact that Queen Victoria features ;), is no surprise, and some old principality is included as well. So what we have are Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, Victoria of Great Britain, William I of Nassau and Pauline of Württemberg.

The term for Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha is:  $0.5^{(4+4+1)} = 0.5^9 = 0.00195$

The term for William I of Nassau is:  $0.5^{(5+5+1)} = 0.5^9 = 0.00049$

Because Victoria was married to Albert, it gives the same term, as for Pauline and William, giving:  $2*0.00195 + 2*0.00049 = 0.0244 = 2.44\%$

Then of course you can continue backwards in time, which of course increases the inbreeding. But probably not very much. There will be quite a lot of people to keep track of as well, so I stick to the example and make it a parallel to Easy Lover.

The king is not very inbred. What to blame it on then I do not know.”<sup>1588</sup>

---

<sup>1588</sup> Flashback, Den stora skvallertråden om H.M. Konung Carl XVI Gustaf. "JagHarEnLiten", #1532, 2010-03-15.